"RUSSIAN WINTER" PROGRAMM

Just feel it and enjoy!

St. Petersburg is nice and charming not only in summer, but also in winter. Winter landscapes in combination with magnificent architecture makes the city really great. The nature of the area in winter helps one feel and understand the severe beauty of the North capital of Russia.

The Bank Bridge in Winter

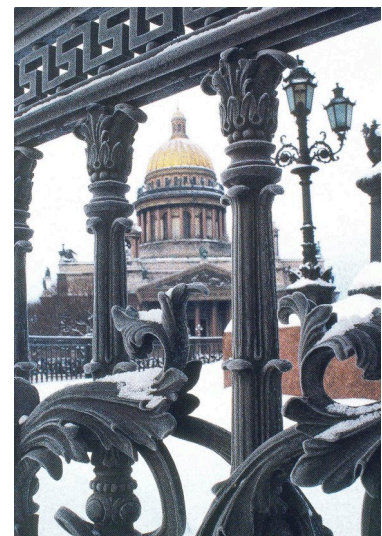

Certainly, St. Petersburg is not really warm in winter, from the point of view of the weather. Generally its cold, but this is also one of the advantages of the season in our city. Bright sparkling snow in the streets, parks and gardens; thick transparent ice on the Neva and on most of the channels - the realm of white colors.

Most people think that life in St. Petersburg stops in winter, but those willing to check it come across the great variety of events taking place in our city at this period of time: first nights at the theaters, sport competitions, music and film festivals,

Events

A lot of different cultural and sports events are traditionally held in winter time in St.Petersburg. The "White Days" Programm is the complex of cultural events in St.Petersburg arranged by the administration of the city in cooperation with major tourist companies and big hotels. Since 2001 all the festivals and concerts are united into the "White Days" Programm, which covers the period of December, January and February. Since recent time the big German tourist company "AirTours" also participates in the programm.

The annual Arts Festival "Russian Winter" has been already existing for 40 years. It has no original concept. During the Soviet times "Russian Winter" was the name of practically all the concerts held within the period of December - beginning of January. The opening and closing Ceremony was held in the form of a big Gala-Concert. Now "Russian Winter" is limited by the concerts held in the Philharmonic Society halls and theater performances.

Christmas and New Year one more time?

The Russian Orthodox Church follows the Julian or Old Calendar.

Thus, the Orthodox Church Feasts and Holidays of January are:

Nativity of Our Lord (Christmas) ~ January 7th

New Year's Day ~ January 14th "Old New Year"

Usually, on Christmas Eve, observant Orthodox Christians fast till late evening, until the first star appears. When the star is seen, people lay the table ready for the Christmas supper. On Christmas Day people take part in divine liturgy, after which many walk in procession to seas, rivers and lakes. Everyone gathers around in the snow for outdoor ceremonies to bless the water. Rivers are frozen, so people make holes in the ice to bless the water. Some take water home to bless their houses. Then a great feast is held indoors where everyone joins in to eat, drink and enjoy themselves.

A Orthodox Russian custom is to serve Christmas cakes and to sing songs. The tradition is mixed with other pagan traditions of ancient Russia such that people may visit their neighbours in disguises, dance, sing and ask for presents, similar to trick-or-treating.

There are similarities, as well as differences, between the Eastern and Western celebration of Christmas. Unlike the West, where Christmas ranks supreme, in the East it is Easter, centred on the cross and the resurrection of Christ, which is the supreme festival of the year. Eastern Orthodox Christmas also lacks the commercial side that is typical of the West.

There are various New Year traditions in Russia as the country celebrates an official and unofficial New Year. In 1699, Czar Peter the Great issued an order for the New Year to be celebrated on January 1st according to the Julian calendar ("Old New Year"). From 1918, Russians celebrated the New Year on 1st January according to the Gregorian calendar and again on 14th January which is 1st January according to the Julian calendar.

Russian New Year traditions include a New Year's Tree known as Novogodnaya Yolka. It is decorated with sweets and has a bright star on top. Another tradition is the arrival of Father Frost or Ded Moroz along with his granddaughter Snegurochka, the snow girl. Children wait for them as they bring New Year presents and keep them under the New Year's Tree. To make Father Frost happy, children sing songs.
